A photograph of a red double door with two windows and metal handles, set within a brick building. A white pipe runs vertically on the right side of the building. A concrete step leads up to the door. The building has a dark roof and a rusted metal lintel above the door. The ground is covered with grass and some debris.

The image shows an interior room with a white brick wall. The ceiling is in poor condition, with large sections of white paint or plaster peeling away, revealing a brownish substrate. A long, white, rectangular object, possibly a light fixture or a piece of wood, is mounted horizontally on the wall. Below the wall, there is a whiteboard with a blue border. To the right of the whiteboard, a portion of a brown door or panel is visible. The overall scene suggests a state of disrepair or ongoing renovation.
